

WCAS Gets set for their Spring Show

This week... an interview with Catherine Schissel.

Being raised in the Kootney region has given Catherine Schissel an appreciation for nature very early in life; today she discusses the details about her art and inspiration.

Q: Tell me about your work.

Catherine: I am a painter. I work in oil, acrylic, pastel and pen and ink.

Q: How did you get started?

Catherine: As long as I can remember painting has been an exciting part of my life. Raised in the Kootenay region of British Columbia, I learned to appreciate the wonder of nature at a very early age.

Q: What inspires you?

Catherine: I am inspired every morning when I wake up and look outside.... whatever the weather... to express nature is a never-ending challenge. My purpose is to transcend the emotion I feel at the moment to the viewer through my paint. Of particular interest is the forest.

Q: To whom do you think your paintings appeals?

Catherine: My work will appeal to every one of all ages. I have been fortunate to live and travel in many different parts of Canada and much of my artwork depicts historical aspects of our heritage.

Q: What price range does your work fall into?

Catherine: Works range from $290 - $1900.

Q: Do you use any unique tools/machines/materials?

Catherine: All work is generally sold with suitable professional framing.

Q: Where can people get your work?

Catherine: I am not taking on commissions at the moment because I prefer to relate personally to every scene. Visit my website at www.ceschisselart.ca.
